190 AT MOTHERS-DAUGHTERS MEET

SERVED LAST NIGHT BY MEN AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

NATIONAL OBSERVANCE

Affair Was Held Under Auspices of County Sunday School Assn.—Excellent Program.

An enthusiastic crowd of about one hundred and ninety mothers and daughters attended the first annual Mother's and Daughter's banquet, which was held last night in the basement of the First Baptist church. The banquet was such a decided success and with a larger attendance than was expected, it was unanimously decided to make it an annual affair.

The dinner was prepared and served by boys under the supervision of G. B. Roseberry, superintendent of the county Sunday school organization. The rooms and tables were elaborately decorated in the colors of blue and white and to do justice to the boys, they certainly "put it over" in serving quick and giving a good square meal. An orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Schnabel added to the evening's enjoyment.

The dinner program with Mrs. Gilbert S. Cox as toastmistress on the theme, "Chums," was exceptionally fine. Prayer was given by Mrs. R. S. Braniger and three minute toasts were given by Miss Ruth Miller on "Our Homes," Mrs. Anderson Craig on "Our Girls," and Miss Florence Puckett on "Our Mothers." Mrs. Craig expressed her thought in a cleverly written poem. A song, "We've a Story to Tell," was led by Miss Ruth Houchens. Recitation and the singing of old time hymns was given and led by Miss Lillian Hall. Miss Marie Cloud gave a vocal solo, "Mother Machree."

The three minute speeches given just for fun by Mrs. G. H. Colbert on "My First Proposal," Mrs. T. H. Leet on "The Funniest Thing That Happened on My Wedding Day," and Mrs. G. B. Holmes, Sr., on "My First Beau" were enjoyed by all. Each told interesting bits of past experiences such as all girls have in their early teens, which added a personal touch to the program. Following these talks, Miss Mabel Raines gave a recitation on "Ma and the Auto."

Four minute talks of the benefits derived when mothers and daughters are chums in various phases of life were given by young girls in heart to heart talks. Miss Alice Peery talked on chums, "In the Home," Miss Helen Hankins on, "In Our Sports," Miss Margaret Dietz on "In Our Friendships," and Miss Mary Holt on "In the Church." The summary of the whole evening was given in a talk on "Chums" by Mrs. Fannie Hope Ferris. The evening's program closed with the singing of hymns.

DR. S. S. STILL INJURED IN ACCIDENT AT KIRKSVILLE.

Dr. S. S. Still, a brother of Mrs. Anderson Craig of this city, was seriously injured a few days ago in an auto accident at Kirksville. Dr. Still was crossing the railroad tracks in his car and while watching to avoid a slow moving freight train coming from one direction, the car was struck by a passenger train coming from the opposite direction which Dr. Still did not see. The car, which was a new one, was entirely wrecked and Dr. Still was dragged about a hundred yards. No bones were broken, but he was very badly bruised and cut all over his body. He was taken to the Kirksville sanitarium, where he is recovering as well as could be expected.

REP. CONVENTION IN ALL NIGHT SESSION

UPHOLDS CREDENTIALS COMMITTEE IN OUSTING ALBUS FACTION.

PIERCE FOR MINORITY

Flays Boss Methods in Spirited Attack on Convention Floor Yesterday Afternoon.

Kansas City, May 7.—The Republican state convention late yesterday elected the following named as five of its eight delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago:

United States Senator Selden P. Spencer, St. Louis; Walter S. Dickey, Kansas City; Edward W. Floristel, St. Louis; W. L. Cole, Union, and Representative L. C. Dyer, St. Louis.

Mrs. Verona Swan of Joplin and Mrs. Alice Curtice Moyer-Wing of Wayne County were elected as the two women members of the delegation. They defeated Miss Alma Sasse of Brunswick, the third nominee.

Dr. J. R. A. Crossland of St. Joseph was elected the negro member of the delegation by acclamation. Each of the eight delegates will have half a vote in the Chicago convention.

The convention late this afternoon adopted unanimously the report of the credentials committee in reversing the action of the state central committee and seating the anti-organization delegation from Buchanan county headed by C. U. Philley. The vote of the credentials committee in ousting the John Albus delegates also had been unanimous.

The convention finally upheld the credentials committee in seating the Dickey-Marks delegates by a vote of 1,182½ to 129. The two contests had held up the transaction of the convention business since the assembly convened yesterday morning.

W. Cal Pierce for Minority.

There were scattering cheers in the arena which were checked instantly when W. Cal Pierce of Maryville, a member of the credentials committee, arose on the platform. He said he had a minority report to submit, calling for the seating of the anti-boss delegates. He turned to Raymond Barnett and asked him to read it. Barnett read the names of the 132 delegates and Pierce moved the adoption of the report.

There was no immediate second and Pierce asked for one. Barnett seconded the motion, and instantly the question was raised on the floor whether he was a delegate to the convention.

"I hold a proxy from the third district," Barnett replied.

"Where did you get it?" asked Col. "Liv" Morse, of the Third District.

Pierce Was Ready.

"If it will suit you any better," Pierce broke in, "we'll make the second come from the first district."

Then Pierce launched into an attack on the majority Dickey-Marks report and the methods by which the delegates it favored were selected.

Time to Stop Such Practices.

"If we can do anything toward the emancipation of this great city we should do it," he said. "I always have been an organization man but there are limits beyond which a man must not go to win. Organization or no organization, it is time to call a halt in such practices as were testified to before the committee.

"I don't try to hide party sins behind the cloak of party regularity. I am for a clean organization or no organization."

CHURCHES GET GOOD ROADS SUNDAY CALL

CLERGYMEN WILL BE ASKED TO HELP IN NATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

FOR COMMUNITY WELFARE

Explain the Relation Between Good Roads and Right Living and Good Roads and Progress.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(Special)—Issuing a call for the observance of Good Roads Sunday, May 16, in connection with National Ship by Truck-Good Roads Week, May 17-22, the committee in charge of arrangements for the week have addressed a letter to clergymen of every denomination, inviting their attention to the "relation between good roads and right living and 'good roads and Christian progress."

Stressing the point that the early construction of better highways will prove one of the quickest means of facilitating production, the call says:

"The purpose is to fix in the heart of citizens the conviction that the next step to be taken for the welfare of the community, the nation and the world is immediately to improve the highways and to inaugurate measures whereby every mile of road bed in the United States may be hard surfaced as soon as the combined forces of counties, states, and the Federal Government can secure this result."

Calling attention to the urgent need of increased transportation facilities, the call continues:

"The waterways and railways can no longer handle the volume of traffic that must be moved. Daily six carloads of freight are offered for shipment in five cars that are available for this purpose.

"City dwellers cannot continue to pay the present prices of foodstuffs. A national factor in these excessive costs is the haul from the farm to the town over primitive roads. The human family cannot live on the present annual supply. If production is to be increased, the farmer's life must be made attractive. Nothing will produce this result as surely as modern highways."

National Good Roads Sunday, observed by pastors and congregations in churches throughout the country, May 16, is only one of the methods employed by the campaign committee to arouse discussion regarding the improved highways and highway transportation.

The other means include 60 tours radiating from as many cities into the rural districts contiguous to these centers, and an essay contest on the subject, "Ship-by-Truck and Good Roads," for which a four-year's university scholarship has been offered for the best essay written by a high school pupil. The scholarship will be awarded after the essays have been read by judges to be appointed by Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton.

Four-minute speakers also will tour the country and make addresses in theatres where Ship-by-Truck films will be shown during the week of May 17-22.

ARMY MULE DID HIS BIT IN WORLD WAR.

Washington.—Altho the ordinary Missouri mule is oft-ridiculed, he comes to his economium at last, in a appreciation from the quartermaster general. Here follows the official publication on the army mule: There were more than 45,000 of him engaged with the army overseas, and more than 100,000 with troops in the United States, and while there was as much "hee hawing, kicking, balking, biting and other mulish tricks as might be expected, the army mule lived up to his established reputation for enduring, sacrificing and dying like a soldier.

DEMOCRAT WOMEN'S MESSAGE TO PARTY

CHAIRMAN OF BUREAU TELLS THE IDEALS OF NEW VOTERS.

ARE READ FOR SERVICE

While Women are Not Yet Responsive to Party Call, They Recognize Value of Team Work.

A Chairman of the Woman"s Bureau, Democratic National Committee, Mrs. George Bass was asked to present the "Message of the Democratic Women to the Party" at the Jefferson Day banquet in New York City. In a speech that was received with enthusiasm, Mrs. Bass said:

"Unprecedented though it be, it is after all, fitting that the first official message of the Democratic women to their party leaders should be communicated to them at a celebration of the birthday of the man who, more than any other statesman of the new democracy, saw the vision of government by the people, and to whom the people meant all, without distinction as to class or station. And who can doubt that had he been able to glimpse the twentieth century conditions of life and the evolution of the self-contained faimly unit into its individual elements, each with its own responsibilities, privileges and duties in the community, the commonwealth and the nation, he would have been the first to count women as people and to ask for them all their civil and political rights, the first to enlist them in that service to their country which is, after all, the measure of the value of citizenship.

Ideals of Citizenship.

"The first part of the message I bring to you is this, that the great majority of the women of this country are coming into their full citizenship with a high sense of public duty. They are not interested in political parties as the dispensers of patronage, and party lines based only on theories of government or even on creditable performances away back in the middle of the last century do not attract them. Their question is as to what party, if any, is doing the world's work today? What party is most aware of all the currents and cross-currents in all the social and industrial and economic realms of activity? What party most show a quickened consciousness of human values, with the desire and the courage to place them above all purely material considerations?

"What party can answer these questions with a list of achievements unparalleled in the legislative annals of this country? The Democratic party.

"What party would have helped to make the peace of the world and would have helped to keep that peace under the League of Nations? The Democratic party.

"In so far my message is answered, and answered satisfactorily. On that basis the women voters of the country voted almost unanimously to return the Democratic party to power in 1916, and on the question of the peace of the world yet unmade but shamelessly betrayed in the Senate of the United States, we shall go to them in 1920 and ask them to return us again, with a Congress responsive to the will of the people.

"The next part of my message is to tell you that the women, although not so responsive to the party call based on heridity, environment or family interest as are men, still do understand the value of organized effort and teamwork. They are practical, and as homemakers and housekeepers and child rearers have had to be practical for uncounted generations. They have infinite patience in detail and unstinted capacity for work. They have developed a marvelous aptitude for organization during their club and suffrage work in the past two decades, and when that was put to the service of their country during the war, the Treasury, the war bureaus, the food service, the Red Cross divisions and the national defense councils all bear testimony fo their unparalleled value. The Democratic party, nationally, knows all this, and has offered to this new electorate the fullest partnership in party councils, party methods of campaign. Democrats are not afraid of what women will ring to the party and have no sinister designs to conceal from them.

"The final part of my message is that the women of America, of this our part of it, have brave souls and clear vision. They are unafraid. They realize that the future holds both promise and menace in its problems but they are not dismayed. I use the word 'America' advisedly, because there is a small group in this country just now, part of them in the United States Senate, and all of them members of the Republican party, who are trying to copyright that word, irrespective of the other rapidly growing American nations round about us, and regardless of all the rest of us to whom Americanism means something larger ,finer and greater than the small, selfish and parochial definition they are trying to give it.

Ready for Service.

"And the last word of this necessarily briefly expressed message is that the women just coming into wider public helpfulness put no limits to their willingness for service. They know that the cables binding us to other nations cannot be cut, that the electric currents cannot be unharnessed, nor the ships of the air pulled to the earth again. The troubles of the world are our troubles. I speak for the uncounted thousands of women when I say that we believe that the Democratic party offers us the great opportunity for that service we wish to give.

THE BURIALS OF BRYAN

By DUDLEY REID.

The scene was at Chicago, some twenty years ago,
The west was all excited, as older people know,
And silver was the issue and like a roaring tide
Was rising on the border and sweeping far and wide.

And on the eastern seaboard, the slogan it was gold,
With followers as lusty, and leadership as bold,
And hearts as firmly centered in what they thought was right,
And it was plain to every one that there would be a fight.

The eastern cause was managed with smooth finesse and skill
By men like Grover Cleveland and David Bennett Hill,
Who sought by specious pleadings and superficial thought
To run o'er western farmers their golden juggernaut.

But back upon the benches, unknown to fame there sat
A young man with a lemon, the "boy from the Platte,"
Who calmly sucked the acid and blew the seeds away
And shaped the golden cadence of destiny that day.

His wisdom wa sconvincing, his logic was replete,
His eloquence was mad'ning and swept men from their feet,
The cheers were long and deaf'ning, the crowd was all aflame,
The west had found its leader—and Bryan was his name.

And how the golden thunder of his supreme campaign
Re-echoed from the hill-tops and swept o'er field and plain,
Until it thrilled the country and people rose in mass
To smite the hosts of Mammon and government by class!

But then, alas, Mark Hanna, unscrupulous and bold,
With tons of filthy lucre bought up the day for gold,
And Bryan he was buried, while tears of tender grief
Bowed down the hearts of millions who idolized their chief.

But God he sent his angels unto the darksome tomb
And broke the seal of silence and made the flowers to bloom,
And Bryan rose in glory from darkness and the grave
To lead again the banner of all the just and brave.

Once more the precious emblem of equity and light
Went down before the legions of power and greed and might,
And Bryan he was buried again so deep in snow
It seemed that God Almighty his grave would scarcely know.

But down in old St. Louis, one-thousand-nine-and-four,
He had again arisen as healthy as before,
And met there single-handed the boasting goulding clan,
And blocked their old maneuvers, and beat them to a man.

Yea, wrested from the straddlers a platform true and sound,
And gave unto the party some honest fighting ground,
Till Parker spoiled the prospects and made his race a sham
By adding to the platform a plank by telegram.

When Parker was defeated, it blocked the Wall Street plan,
And, sick and tired of humbugs, the people asked a man,
And so they called to Bryan, and once again he came
And touched the hills and prairies with eloquence and flame.

But tho' the cause was gaining, the time was yet too soon,
The clock had not yet stricken the hour of golden noon,
So Ephriam hugged his idols and held them fierce and tight,
And once again the leader went down in gallant fight.

And then again his comrades picked up his mangled bones
And placed them in the grave-yard and covered them with stones,
But as in tears they left him, their hearts somewhat in doubt,
His two big toes were active and slowly wriggling out.

And at the big convention of famous Baltimore,
He was as strong and rugged as in the days of yore,
And Morgan, Belmont, Murphy, and all the Wall Street crew,
Went down before his onslaughts with briskets black and blue.

He beat them to the keynote, and pitched it true and sound;
And then he wrote the platform, the best that could be found;
And picked out Woodrow Wilson to stand upon it, too—
And this it seems was plenty for any corpse to do.

And now reform was rip'ning on every hill and plain,
The fruit of Bryan's labor, the wisdom of his brain,
It was the day of reaping, the harvest-fields were white,
And Democrats pressed forward to glean the sheaves of light.

The cause it was triumphant, and Wilson felt so glad
He brought to Billy Bryan the biggest plum he had,
And asked the noted leader to sit upon his right
And help him in the battle with privilege and might.

And Bryan he accepted and lent a willing hand,
To every party measure that Wilson gave the land,
And oft in hours of darkness when cunning blocked the fight,
He shed his "linen duster" and knocked them left and right.

He made a good official, although the old machine
Pursued him with a malice the world has seldom seen,
On every word and action, the devil it outlod,
And damned him if he didn't—and damned him if he did.

But when the hate and slander and calumny are passed,
And all the fires of envy have burned away at last,
All mankind will remember he worked without surcease
For thirty golden treaties to keep the world at peace.

At last when the war-clouds gathered and conscience and belief
Would not permit him longer to travel with his chief,
He shook his hand in sadness, but calm as man could be,
And faced the roaring breakers—and jumped into the sea.

It would have seemed less bitter to see him die on land,
Engaged again in battle, his broad-sword in his hand,
Than to have him brave the ocean and perish in the sea,
And have no resurrection—at least none seemingly.

But fortune always favors the honest and the brave,
And soon his smiling features appeared above the wave,
His big, strong arms out-parting the angry waves before,
His vision calm and steadfast—and headed for the shore.

As soon as he had landed, he stood with steraming hair
And spoke for love and patience and mercy everywhere,
For justice and forbearance, and all those tender ties
That knit man to his brother and bless and civilize.

While others talked of soldiers and armaments and guns,
Of shot and shell and powder and battle-ships by tons,
And other horrid engines for taking human life,
He preached the gentle answer that always conquers strife.

So down at old St. Louis, he was the biggest man,
Became the honored leader of public thought again,
And sounded there the slogan that won the most applause
And made the hope of triumph seem brighter for the cause.

But the elect were blinded and feared to send him east,
Lest he might spoil their chances, or damage them at least,
So in the south and central, and in the north and west,
They told him to unlimber and do his dog-gonod best.

But when the votes were counted, the east it went for Hughes
By such astounding figures it seemed the cause would lose,
Until the western country, where Bryan had been sent,
Rebuked the eastern jingoes and saved the President.

And those that scoffed at Bryan, should take the map and see
Along his path of travel the sheen of victory,
By precinct and by precinct, by hamlet and by town;
It is the same old story of truth that will not down.

Although the east was maddened and voted blood and war,
And battle-ships and soldiers and strife that all abhor,
The west it bade the cannon and gatling-gun surcease,
And voted love and mercy and charity and peace.

And so to Billy Bryan no man should say goodbye,
Like truth he is eternal and Gimply will not die,
And tho' he may be buried in grief and tears today,
Tomorrow and her angels shall roll the stones away.

TOAST TO "OUR GIRLS" CLEVERLY GIVEN IN RHYME.

The following poem was written by Mrs. Anderson Craig and read last night at the Mothers and Daughters banquet at the First Baptist church, in response to the toast, "Our Girls." So many persons hearing it last night enjoyed it and at the request of those present, the poem is published.

"OUR GIRLS."

"Someone has requested — I hardly know who,
That I talk to you friends—for minutes a few,
On a subject, so dear to each mother's heart,
It seems of her inner most being a part,
Our girls! they're so replete with life's richest joys
With them, nothing compare—unless 'tis our boys.

Our girls! they're ourselves, just set backward again.
With no touch of sadness or sorrow or pain,
Just youth, hope and beauty of fond hearts the pride,
With love lavishly given and fealty beside;
Our girls, they're pure gold with no dross that alloys,
Nought dims their great lustre—not even our boys.

Our girls may be weak; but they reign over the earth,
We're their willing subjects from the day of their birth,
When their innocent eyes look first into our own;
We abdicate then, our sceptre and throne.
Unwilling we serve them, naught their sweet reign destroys
Until one day they yield it—to one of our boys.

Our girls, they embody love, loyalty, truth,
Reminding us ever of our far away youth;
They're fair as the flowers, that blossom in May,
And sweet as the perfumes of June's fairest day;
Their love so spontaneous, it never annoys,
Till some day 'tis transferred—to one of our boys.

Our girls! they're so likable, tender and true,
So full of ambition and energy too,
Their hearts uncorrupted by vices or sin,
Their faces a-beam with flame from within,
O mothers! be wise; see that nothing destroys,
The pure hearts of our girls nor those of our boys.

O woe, to you mothers; should you fail in your trust!
Should you falter when right for you know God is just.
If you weakly submit and so lose control,
Of Heaven's richest blessing — a girl's pure soul,
Tho' wayward at times, tho' she sometimes annoys,
Ask our Father to bless you—our girls and our boys.

I speak from a heart overflowing tonight,
I have seen the canker worms, blasting and blight,
I have hailed a few derelicts drifting unknown,
Afar from their loved one, their mothers, their own,
Whose lips have quaffed deep from the cup that destroys,
The once innocent girl and the brightest of boys.

Then here's that we mothers be true to our girls,
That Christ's banner this night — forever unfurls,
May they from its influence never depart,
Lives of our life; hearts of our heart;
Oh keep them our Father, from sin that destroys,
These beings beloved, our girls and our boys.

WORK TWO MONTHS IN YEAR

Colony of Spiders May Be Thought to Have an Easy Time, But They Don't.

In Hoboken, N. J., in a large surveying instrument factory, there is a colony of 200 workmen who never receive wages, yet who are perfectly contented. They toil from early in the morning until late at night, and their only recompense is a house fly or two apiece during the day. They are spiders—large, black, energetic spiders—and they comprise probably the most indispensable part of the entire working force. It is their duty to spin the thread that is used for cross hairs in surveying instruments. During the two months of the year when they work they produce thousands of yards of the almost invisible but invaluable fiber.

The spider colony works only during August and September. A strike among them may sound amusing to the reader, but it is really a serious matter. For the purpose of urging the little workmen to their tasks four girls, trained to expertness in their unusual duties, are employed; it is their task to coax the spiders to work whenever they show signs of reluctance.

Coaxing the spiders really means irritating them. The girl places one on her hand and pats or taps it until it jumps toward the ground, leaving one end of its thread behind. Before the spider can reach the ground the girl quickly attaches the thread to a wire whirling frame, which she revolves in her hands. As the spider struggles to reach the ground she continues to wind, and in that way sometimes gets several hundred feet of thread from a single spider.

GOT REAL "DIGGER" WELCOME

General Birdwood's Popularity in Australia Thoroughly Attested by a Recent Happening.

General Birdwood occupies a unique place in the heart of the Australian soldier, who remembers Gallipoli and France and has a hundred stories to tell of the general's unexpected appearances in "shorts" on some hot battle front. Being a democrat, the Australian crowned the object of his reverence, when he reached Melbourne, with the slouch hat of the "digger," and then carried the general shoulder-high through heavy rain to an improvised platform. Perhaps the neatest acknowledgment of the general's thanks came from a digger in the domain. General Birdwood told the assembled soldiers in Victoria that when he arrived in western Australia, the first thing he received was a cartoon drawn by one of the lads of the Twenty-eighth battalion. "It showed a great, big digger hand held out in welcome," said General Birdwood, proudly. Before he could continue, a rain-drenched digger remarked: "The other hand is here in Melbourne."

Wonderful Swinging Monument.

Gently swaying to and fro, a huge granite monolith forming a unique natural monument has been discovered on Green mountain, several miles north of Canon City, Colo. It is believed to be the only "swinging monument" in the world.

The shaft is more than 100 feet high and in the course of many years has become free from all surrounding earth formation except at the base, which is about 12 feet wide. In the center the granite column is about 50 feet in thickness and tapers off to a width at the summit practically the same as at the base.

The entire shaft moves probably from two to three feet at the apex, and the swing is constant under the pressure of light winds. The base of the shaft rests in a small hollow about three feet in depth, and the contiguous granite formation has been entirely disconnected.

Strong Wind at High Altitude.

Altitude flights by army aviators have shown the existence, at a height of 25,000 feet or more above the earth, of a strong west wind, whose velocity is estimated at perhaps 175 miles per hour. These flights also have shown that there is not a continuous reduction in temperature as altitude increases. The flights have tested a supercharger, which is expected to be of considerable military and commercial value. For military purposes its use will be to increase greatly the speed of airplanes at altitudes. For commercial purposes, it is said that the supercharger will enable heavy passenger or express carrying airplanes to climb over the highest mountains with the use of comparatively low powered and low priced engines.

Surprised a Stranger.

My girl chum always rode out on the train at night with the fellow to whom she was engaged. One night as I was walking through the cars I thought I saw him sitting alone, so I took the bunch of flowers I had in my hand and, sticking them in his face, said: "What are you riding all alone for?" I can frankly say that my most embarrassing moment occurred when I found myself looking into the surprised face of an entirely strange man.—Exchange.

Hours of Labor.

"You seem tired."

"A bit overtaxed," admitted the student of economics. "I have been rising at 6 in the morning and working till midnight on a series of speeches to prove that six hours' work a day is enough for any man."

Where is Relief From Blazing Skin Diseases?

Must I Endure Forever the Torturous Itching?

The skin is fed from the blood, and upon the condition of the blood depends whether or not your skin will be healthy and free from boils, pimples, scaly irritations, red eruptions and other disfiguring and unsightly disorders.

The sensible treatment that will show real results is a remedy that will cleanse the blood thoroughly and kill the germs that cause the trouble. And for this purpose no remedy ever made can approach the record of S. S. S. which cleanses the blood of the disease germs, at the same time building up the general health.

Doctors wanted to operate and tap my stomach, but I happened to see a newspaper ad of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and after taking 3 doses I have had no more distress or bloating and am eating things I have not dared to eat for 6 years. I am confident your medicine will cure me." HOUSE G.O.P.'S MAY UPSET MACHINE

COMMITTEE ON RULES RIDING TO ANOTHER FALL.

ON SOLDIER BONUS BILL

Back to Old Habit of Bringing in Rules to Cut Off Amendments to the Bills.

Washington, D. C.—Recalling the rules fight in 1910, which curbed the power of the Speaker and the then Republican committee on Rules, former Speaker Champ Clark has warned the G. O. P. majority of the House that unless they change their ways they will ride to another fall.

Representative Clark spoke in connection with reports that the Rules committee would bring in a "gag" rule to put through soldier bonus legislation without giving the membership of the House an opportunity to amend the bill in any way. The former Speaker declared he was emphatically in favor of the bonus, but was as strongly opposed as ever to special rules that shut off debate and opportunity of amendment.

Mr. Clark said the Republicans had been considering two plans, one for bringing the bill in under suspension of the rules, which meant no opportunity to amend and no motion to recommit; the other under a special rule which also would limit debate and forbid amendment.

"Under a suspension of the rules," he said, "you have got to have a two-thirds vote. You cannot amend the bill; you cannot discuss it beyond forty minutes, and you cannot offer a motion to recommit. You are absolutely at the mercy of the men who are running the affairs over on the Republican side of this House.

"I want to refresh the memories of some of you newer members. We had a great parliamentary revolution here on the 19th day of March, 1910. We took two heats at it. We tried it on the 15th day of March, 1909, and got a bloody licking, but on the 19th day of March, 1910, upset the machine here.

"We could not have done that without some reason for upsetting it and sending you Republican people wandering in the wilderness for eight years. One of the things that upset the machine was the continual iteration and reiteration that the Rules committee abused its powers continuously and constantly by bringing in these rules here that do not permit of amendment. That was one of the main things they did.

"I am not going to say anything unkind about men on the other side of the chamber, but that is one of the things that did it. I will give you a general warning. Human nature has not changed one particle since Adam and Eve were driven with flaming swords from Paradise and never will change until the great Judgment day. You are entering on identically the same course of conduct that enabled me and my colleagues to upset the machine here in March, 1910.

"Three-fourths of the rules brought in here now do not permit any amendment except that one motion to recommit, and you cannot do away with it because the general rules of the House of Representatives forbid the Rules committee to report a special rule trying to cut out that motion to recommit. You Republicans are going back to your old habits of bringing in rules to cut off amendments to bills.

"All we want is a chance to offer amendments. I do not think the House is in the habit of running wild. What the Democrats want and a good many Republicans as I understand it—and I am not going to talk any politics—is an opportunity to debate the bill in here and to offer amendments to it. * * *

"I am warning you. The breakers are ahead of you, and you will get trounced on account of those rules that the present temporary majority of the House Rules committee is continually bringing in here.

"Napoleon said: 'The Bourbons learn nothing and forget nothing.' The great Emperor's saying applies to the Republican leaders in the House."

Former Speaker Champ Clark said he and the majority of his Democratic colleagues were in favor of soldier bonus, or adjusted compensation, legislation, on the theory that nothing was too good for the men who won the war against Germany. However, he said the Democratis of the House and himself were as much opposed to "gag rules" as in 1910, and no majority of the Rules committee had the right to bring in an important bill, involving more than a billion dollars in taxes, without giving the House a chance to amend it if that body thinks best.
